McNARY PUTS O. K. ON STAND OF HOOVER FOR FARM RELIEF

Nominee Anxious to Relieve Agriculture Distress.

AUTHOR OF BILL

Says Republican Will Keep Pledge in Platform.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Following a conference with Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, today Senator McNary (R) of Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, declared that he "had found Hoover sympathetic and anxious to relieve the distress of the farm population."

Common Ground for Action.
"The agricultural plank in the Republican platform commits the party to the enactment of legislation that will place agriculture on a basis of economic equality with industry," McNary said.

"The party must keep this pledge and I have ample confidence that it will."

McNary, pointing out that the time is not far distant when the country will consume its entire farm crop surplus, added, "that in the meantime and at the earliest possible date, we should do all that is possible legislatively to remove agricultural depression which has weakened the whole economic structure."

Admitting that he still stood for the McNary-Haugen bill, McNary said that honest differences of opinion have prevented the correction of the situation and the application of an appropriate and effective remedy.

"However, the necessity for some measure of relief so imperative as to warrant the supposition that differences of opinion must be composed and a wrong ground found for successful congressional action," McNary declared.

GAS IS BLAMED IN MINE DEATH

Death of Patrick O'Brien, 69, coal miner, in the Bougher company mine two miles east of Salineville, yesterday, was caused by poisonous gas, according to a verdict by Coroner J. M. VanFossan at an inquest today in the Hutsen funeral home, Salineville.

O'Brien's body was found in a "room" of the mine which he had been working, by another employee.

Today

A Brave Woman.
Merry, Merry Farmers.
Hoover There.
The President Rests.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST, who died Thursday, will be remembered with gratitude and honor. Possessing courage, determination and self-sacrifice of which few men would be capable, Mrs. Pankhurst led and won the battle for woman suffrage.

In her magnificent campaign she faced the contempt of dull men and stupid women. Some day the women of the world will erect to her memory the monument that she deserves.

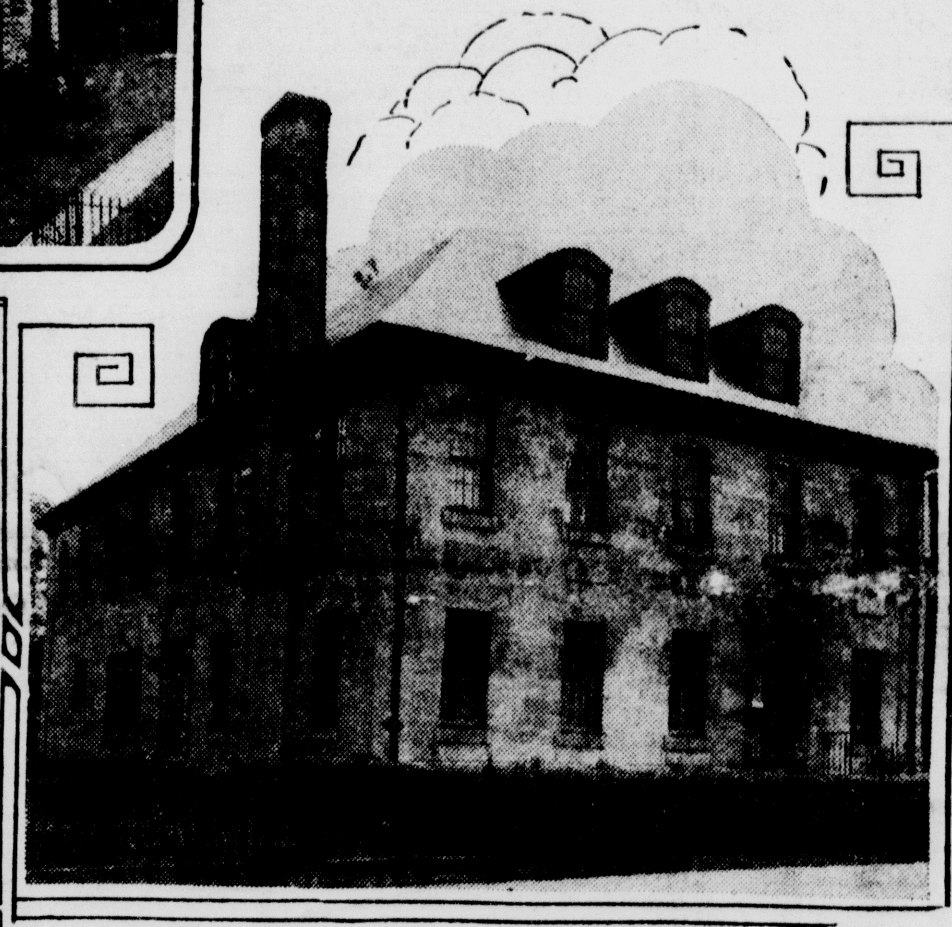

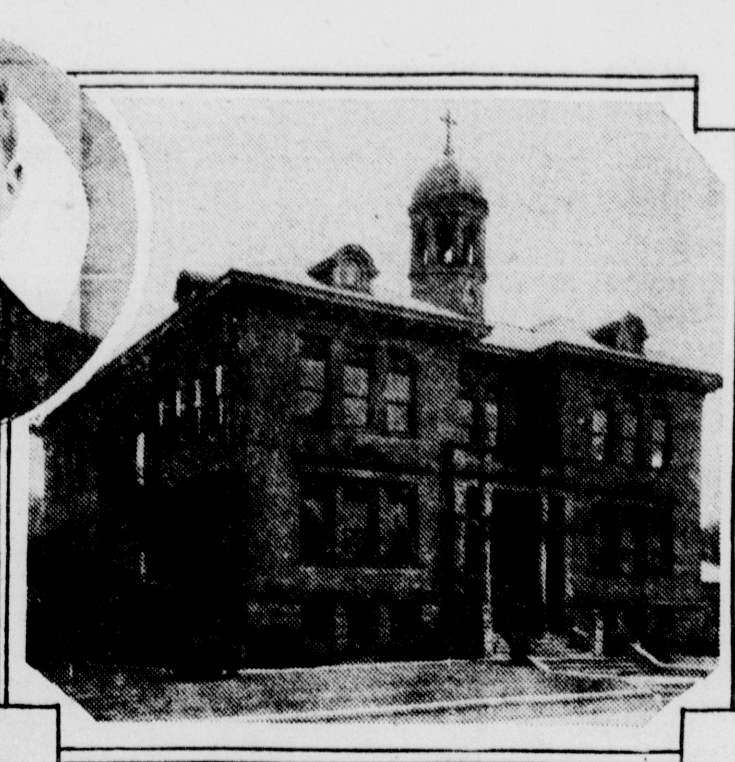

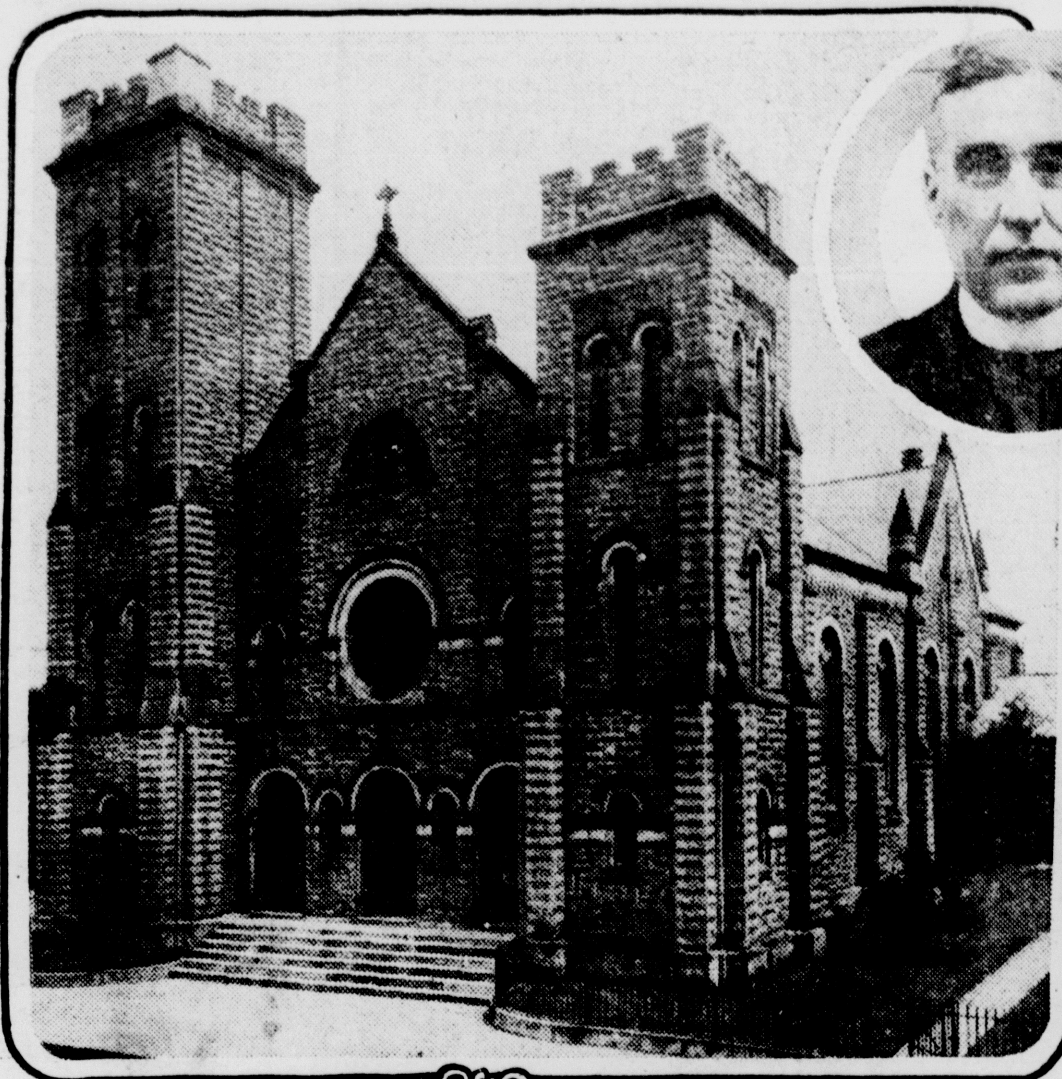

THE farmers' demonstration in Kansas City lent an artistic touch to the convention. It was suggested that Mr. Florenz Zeigfeld, of the Polies, had been engaged to prepare the costumes, just as he would do for a rural scene in his New York theatre.

THE farmers brought hay forks and hoes on their shoulders, and while they didn't sing "We Are Merry, Merry Farmers," or stamp their hoe handles on the ground in unison, they presented a pretty picture.

What disappointed "friend of the farmer" financed that exhibition? JACK DEMPSEY discovers that real estate provides the softest road to wealth. He sold a hotel in Los Angeles for $650,000, making a profit of $100,000 with great ease, and didn't have to hit anybody "on the point of the jaw" or let anybody hit him to make the money.

REAL ESTATE works swiftly, surely. You buy property, crowds move in your direction, mothers produce more babies, which puts up rents, and without a struggle you are worth thousands or millions more. Ask the Astors, Goetzels, Gerys, or ask single taxers and see them rave.

FEAR DISASTER AS TWO RIVER LEVEES BREAK

Missouri and Arkansas Face Damage From Floods.

FARMS INUNDATED

1,700 Families in Two States Flee From Homes.

CHICAGO, June 16.—No danger of a repetition of the disastrous floods which swept the Mississippi valley last year was foreseen here today by the United States weather bureau.

Professor Henry J. Cox, forecaster of the Chicago area, said he had received special weather reports today from stations along the Mississippi which reported a lowering of the stage at St. Louis and other places.

No rains have been reported except in the extreme southern portion of the river. The condition of the St. Francis river at Kennett, Mo., is purely due to local rains, Cox said.

KENNETT, Mo., June 16.—A second break in the St. Francis river levee today left a 200-foot gap, and sent additional flood waters over the low lying farms in southeast Missouri. Approximately 30,000 acres of land have been flooded.

TELEPHONE CABLE WORKER DROWNS

HURON, O., June 16.—A man identified as Edward Murray, 35, Cleveland, is dead today, victim of drowning. While working with a telephone cable repair crew, Murray fell from a raft in mid-stream late Friday. His body was recovered.

BAND WAGON NOW ON BUS ROUTE

KANSAS CITY, June 16.—This busy metropolis of the plains returned to normalcy today.

The Hoover band wagon, which looked as if it might have come straight from the circus grounds, has gone back to its regular bus route.

Hoover and Curtis! It was no fault of the city that the Republican convention failed to arouse those frenzied outbursts which usually accompany such party gatherings. Kansas City, if the delegates did not, put on a good show.

They called this a convention, but it was more of a ratification meeting.

TRACTOR KILLS TRUCK FARMER

Wallace L. Pettit, Near Salem, is Victim.

Wallace L. Pettit, 46, Mahoning county truck farmer, was crushed to death at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the tractor which he was using to harrow a field, overturned on his farm about five miles north of Salem.

The accident occurred when the machine struck a soft place in the ground, causing it to topple. Members of Pettit's family found his body a few minutes after the accident.

The farm on which the tragedy occurred is known as the Silver Fox Gardens, being owned by Pettit, R. B. Heacock, Lisbon and ex-Mayor George Russell, Salem.

Pettit is survived by his mother and two sisters. Funeral services will be held in his home Monday afternoon. Burial will be made in the Mountrie cemetery.

FORD MOTOR CO. 25 YEARS OLD

DETROIT, June 16.—The most remarkable phenomenon of the modern industrial world—the Ford Motor company—celebrates its silver jubilee today.

Twenty-five years ago the factory occupied less than a quarter of an acre of ground. Its investment was only a few thousand dollars, the queer "horseless carriage" was produced by 311 men.

Today the Detroit plant alone covers more than 1,500 acres. Values are tallied at billions. Its employees' all told number approximately 200,000.

CHIROPRACTORS TO FACE COURT

State Medical Board Agent Names Five in Charges.

A campaign against chiropractors who are alleged to be practicing without certificates from the state medical board, was launched in Columbiana county today when warrants for the arrest of five persons—four men and one woman—were filed in municipal court. Hearings have been set for Friday, June 29, before Judge Hanley.

The defendants are G. W. Hall, East Liverpool; Miss Sylvia C. Morrow, Salem; S. F. Cholar, Lisbon; H. W. Crawford, East Palestine, and W. Blair Steele, Wellsville. The quintet were arrested upon information of Frank A. Dorsey, Columbus, state medical board investigator, who, with J. B. Leitz, New Philadelphia, has been working in the county for several days. They are charged with violation of Section 12694 of the General Code of Ohio which prohibits chiropractors from practicing without first having been granted a certificate by the state medical board.

CLOSE STRAND, PLAN $100,000 KEITH HOUSE

Name of Theatre to be Changed to "State."

OPEN LABOR DAY

St. Clair Avenue Place Will be Vaudeville Home.

Improvements and alterations costing $100,000 will be made to the Strand theatre this summer, converting it into a vaudeville house in which Keith-Albee entertainment will be featured, Manager William Hendricks announced today.

When the theatre closes tonight, the name "Strand" will pass out of existence. It will re-open on Labor Day under the name of the State theatre, Hendricks said.

The improvement program calls for the removal of balcony and stairs at the entrance and the construction of a luxuriously-appointed mezzanine floor. The stage will be enlarged, while the ventilating system is to be modernized.

The front entrance will also be remodeled with elaborate lobbies. The box office will touch the sidewalk. There will be a new marquee and electric sign over the main entrance. New lavatories and parlors will be provided. A new style seat has been adopted for the theatre which will be completely carpeted. The lighting system will also be changed.

Wheeling Architect in Charge. Interior of the playhouse will be redecorated, this contract having been awarded to Brand & Company of New York, who were in charge of the decorations for the famous Roxy theatre. When completed the theatre will be one of the most up-to-date vaudeville houses in eastern Ohio. The improvements will be in charge of A. W. Bates, Wheeling architect. 25 REPUBLICANS AND SEVEN DEMS SEEK PRIMARY TICKET PLACES

Ila Marshall Cronin's Name in Two Races.

MURPHY ENTERS

J. J. Whitacre, Minerva, Seeks Nomination for Congress.

Thirty-two candidates—25 Republicans and seven Democrats—qualified in the races for county offices at the primaries on Tuesday, August 14, when the time limit for filing declarations expired last midnight.

Central Committee Flood.
On the Republican ticket there is contest for every office excepting common pleas judge, county treasurer, county commissioners and county surveyor.

The Democrats, on the other hand, have but one contest in the county, that being for sheriff. Two candidates are seeking the nomination.

While the Democrats had planned to name a complete ticket, papers were filed by candidates for but four offices—representative to general assembly, commissioner, clerk of courts and sheriff.

No county auditor or recorder will be named. The incumbents hold over for two years because the state law extended their terms.

A flood of declarations for central committeemen also have been filed, but these aspirants had not been listed by election board officials today pending examination of papers.

One candidate for district office also filed with the Columbiana county board, that being Judge Louis T. Farr, Lisbon, who is seeking re-election to the court of appeals from the seventh judicial district.

Mrs. Ila Marshall Cronin, who is seeking the Republican nomination for representative to the general assembly, also filed for the state Central committee from the 18th congressional district. She will oppose Allen Scott, Cadiz, candidate for re-election.

Congressman Frank Murphy, Steubenville, probably will be unopposed for the Republican re-nomination in the 18th district. Murphy qualified for the place with the Jefferson county election board.

Former Representative John J. Whitacre, Minerva, filed for the Democratic nomination for congress.

Names of Candidates.
Here are the candidates for county office:

Republicans:
Representative to general assembly (two to nominate)—Mrs. Ila Marshall Cronin, East Liverpool; W. H. Van Fossan, Lisbon; R. D. Smith, Salineville.

Clerk of courts—Clyde Barlow, Lisbon; James F. Elliott, Lisbon; John A. Noble, Lisbon.

Surveyor—Lloyd C. Kirk, Lisbon, formerly of Salineville.

County commissioner, (two to nominate) (Continued On Page 8, Column 4)

G. O. P. QUILTS KANSAS CITY IN HAPPY MOOD

Nomination of Curtis Does Much to Allay Bitterness.

FARMER'S FRIEND

Talk of "Bolt" and Third Party Dies Out.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.
KANSAS CITY, June 16.—The Republicans cleared out of Kansas City today a good deal happier and confident than they thought they could be several days ago when angry and embittered farmers were storming at the doors of their national convention.

The nomination of Senator Curtis as vice president, the party leaders believe, will do much to allay the bitterness of the radical exponents of farm relief, and the resentful vaudeville of Frank O. Lowden that the Republican platform "failed" to meet fully and squarely the needs of the grain belt.

Curtis has for years marched under the banner "The Farmer's Friend." Kansas lays claim to being the very heart of the great agricultural region that stretches from the Ohio-Indiana line to the Rockies. Curtis voted for the McNary-Haugen bill. It is true that on the question of the veto he voted to sustain the president, but he explained that by saying he deemed it his duty to do so because of his position as Republican leader of the senate.

Lowden Statement Kerosene. Of the bitterness of the farmers, or the farm organizations, that were represented in Kansas City there can be no doubt. When battalions of them try to storm the doors of a Republican national convention it indicates that the situation, if not actually serious, at least may become so. And the Lowden statement that he did not care to be the nominee on such a platform as the Republicans adopted here was calculated to be only kerosene to the fire.

This is the situation which the Republican leaders believe the nomination of Charley Curtis—and time—will do much to ameliorate.

The talk of "bolt" and the talk of a third party which as everywhere prevalent a few days ago, had virtually all died out today.

Curtis Victory Offsets Rebuke.

The responsible leaders of the party believe that Curtis' nomination of itself will eventually offset the effect of Lowden's stinging rebuke to his party. They concede that Lowden is extremely popular from Indiana westward to the Rockies, and that his views carry weight with the farmers of that region. But they do not believe that Lowden, even in his bitterest moments, would essay to lead any open revolt against the Republican party this autumn.

The vision of Frank O. Lowden, admittedly the only man now that "fighting Bob" LaFollette is dead, becoming the symbol of a third party movement in the west is to them an impossible one. Lowden is a Republican of some 40 years regularity. So are most of the men who fought with him in Kansas City—Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, Vice President Dawes, and Senator Curtis himself, who now has consented to stand on the platform this convention adopted. So were most of their friends. Hence they believe the threat of a third party agrarian movement this fall is an idle one.

ANNIE LAURIE'S TIMELY ADVICE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going out with a boy since January. I love him, but he does not seem to care much for me. What do you advise me to do to gain his love? Would it be proper for me to give him a birthday present? My birthday in March passed by without even being mentioned by him.

DOTTIE.

DOTTIE: In the first place, Dottie, I would certainly advise against giving this friend a birthday present. This would indicate a closer friendship than exists.

As for the gentleman's love—he as sweet and cordial to him as you know how, chat with him about those things you know he is interested in and try in every way to be a perfect companion. Accept his invitation and he will realize that you want his friendship. But don't be impatient for love, Dottie. That will come in time.

Al Smith's Brown Derby Shined Up for Convention

Mrs. Moskowitz, Ample and Motherly, Is Directing Genius of Campaign

By SHIRLEY KIRKE
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK.—Up at the Biltmore Hotel a motherly woman with a soft, low voice is brushing Governor Al Smith's brown derby into readiness for the Democratic convention.

In the midst of telegrams, long distance calls, vases of complimentary flowers and young ladies who politely answer the phones, sign for messages and convey reporters to the personages they wish to see, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, a large, amply-proportioned woman with a serene face, moves coolly and calmly about her untitled job as publicity director for the Al Smith presidential campaign.

Her desk directly across from George R. Van Namee, pre-convention campaign manager of the Smith forces, is piled high with sheafs of letters awaiting signatures. Her telephone rings constantly. Assistants call her aside to whisper this and that important person must be seen. And through it all Mrs. Moskowitz remains the same cool-headed, unruffled self of many years of political activity.

She has been called the Colonel House of Governor Smith's administration—the ambassador without portfolio; one of the most brilliant women in either state or national politics—and her accomplishments bear out these titles. But her true self is revealed in the picture of a plump-cheeked cherub on her desk at Democratic headquarters. It is her grandson, a "British baby" born to her daughter, Miriam, who married an Englishman and lives in London. And Mrs. Moskowitz confesses that her proudest title is just—"granny."

Born Bella Linder, daughter of a Harlem watchmaker, she attended New York's public schools, was graduated from Horace Mann and went thence to Teachers' College at Columbia, where she studied dramatics, logic and psychology. Shortly after she finished her course at Columbia she became the bride of Charles Israel, the architect, and upon his death turned to social service work as a means of supporting herself and her children. In 1909 she married Dr. Henry Moskowitz, himself a social worker and one-time city commissioner.

Mrs. Moskowitz looks upon politics as a medium for carrying out needed laws and bills; and her advice to women who wish to identify themselves with either of the great national parties is first to study earnestly the things for which they stand; and, secondly, to exercise their privilege of the ballot religiously. For a "support" who cannot find time to go to the polls isn't of much avail to either a candidate or a cause.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl, 15 years old, and I am very much in love with a boy who is 22. He took me several times to parties and is always anxious to give me a good time. Whenever we come home from a party I kiss this boy because I really like to kiss. I told my girl friends about this and they all tell me it is a waste of time to kiss a boy. Do you think it is wrong for a girl to kiss a boy whom she is deeply in love with?

KISSIE: I think I would be a little more careful about distributing my kisses, my dear. If you are engaged all angles but always end up where I started. Your advice will be very much appreciated.

UNDECIDED.

UNDECIDED: I think, my dear, that the only possible way for you to be fair to your fiancé and yourself would be to break off this impossible engagement. Since you feel that your education is superior to his, since you have no respect for his "ideals," I think that a marriage between you both would be decidedly unwise. Beginning in such a way, it would be bound to split upon the rocks.

SEE NEW YORK AS PIVOT IN FALL ELECTION

Mills Claims Hoover Will Carry Al Smith's State.

OUTLINE BATTLE

G. O. P. Plans Intensive Campaign in Every City.

KANSAS CITY, June 16.—The New York delegation was speeding home today from the Republican national convention with virtually this one thought in mind:

"Can Hoover carry New York if Al Smith is nominated by the Democrats?"

The original Hoover leaders in the New York delegation, such as Ogden L. Mills, under secretary of the treasury; Richard Lawrence, G. O. P. leader of the Bronx, and William H. Hill of Binghamton, who served as Hoover's upstate manager during the pre-convention activities, were in a happy frame of mind. They insisted that despite Governor Smith's popularity in his home state, the commerce secretary would come through with flying colors on election night.

Mills Boomed for Cabinet. There is another side to the picture, however. The leaders of the "Draft Coolidge" movement in the delegation publicly are cheering for Hoover, but privately they are declaring that a real fight lies ahead of them in Smith's own state.

Convinced that New York is likely to be a pivotal state in the election this fall, the Hoover forces already are making tentative plans for one of the most intensive campaigns ever waged in the Empire state. Some of the party's orators will campaign in every city of any size in the state in an effort to win the state for the national ticket.

Because Mills was one of the first leaders in New York to come out for Hoover months ago, and because he stood by his guns even at the price of being denied the honor of representing New York on the resolutions committee, it is generally believed he will be awarded the post of secretary of the treasury in the event of Hoover's election.

Hoover's Running Mate

Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, whose sturdy manhood has been drawn from the blood of Kaw Indian forebears and the fire and daring of a French-Canadian-American sire, and who has been successively jockey, back driver, lawyer and leader of the majority in the upper house on Capitol Hill at Washington, is the running mate of Herbert Hoover, of California, on the Republican national ticket in the 1928 campaign.

Emphasizing its sincerity in the pledge in behalf of agriculture relief, the Kansas City convention yesterday literally swept a friend of the farmer into the vice-presidential nomination. If the rules had permitted, this man of retiring disposition but of pleasing personality and legislator of high character would have been named by acclamation. As it was he received 1052 of the 1086 votes cast in the one-ballot victory.

The nominee, who has a record of 35 years service in congress, had been among the outstanding candidates for first place on the ticket. And he had stood on a five-plank platform which promised an administration that would foster prosperity, economy but not parsimony in government, strict enforcement of all laws, including prohibition, and enforcement of the constitutional guarantee of religious liberty.

He is a man who has the courage of his convictions, and his public record shows that it is characteristic of him to speak upon subjects which other men sidestep. His addition to the ticket will strengthen it.

The Hoover-Curtis ticket is a strong combination—an alliance that will sweep onto victory in November.

Hobbing De Luxe

Stretched from Maine to California and from Duluth to the Rio Grande is practically an unbroken line of young men, and not a few women, with their thumbs in the air.

Right here at home—on the highways at the edge of East Liverpool will be found others with their thumbs in the air, and their luggage thrust aimlessly forward at the edge of the pavement.

These people with their thumbs in the air all want rides. Hobbing de luxe has reached the point where it is a most serious problem—and a problem in which the very life of the motorist himself is in danger.

Most of the automobiles one encounters these days have empty seats and amiable drivers. If the thumb happens to be attached to a fairly respectable looking customer, that customer gets a ride, and with very little pleading.

But in encouraging this sort of thing by giving lifts to thumbers on every highway in the land, are the motorists doing the hobo a god turn? And is it worth while for a motorist to risk his neck by picking up a man whom he does not know and who, perhaps, is a rascal of the worst stripe? Most certainly not.

Despite warnings which are issued periodically—despite stories which get into the newspapers of motorists who have been beaten and robbed and thrown from their car—other motorists continue to pick up these hoboes of the highway, and subject themselves to the selfsame brutality which has been accorded others with kind hearts.

Some of these hoboes de luxe, of course, are upstanding young men on a lark. They are out for adventure. They are clean and decently dressed. But the motorist cannot distinguish between the young man who may merit a lift, and the other young man who may be thumbing a ride for the purpose of assaulting and robbing his benefactor.

Many motorists pass up all thumbers without as much as a sidelong glance. If all of them would follow this practice hobbing de luxe would soon pass out and any number of automobile drivers would save themselves from robbery, or a worse fate.

Muscle Shoals Veto

The government has no business engaging in the marketing business—or in the manufacture of fertilizer. President Coolidge, who vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill, which would have set up a federal marketing bureau, has, in effect, killed the Muscle Shoals bill by letting it repose on his desk. The president's customary courage and consistency is to be commended.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, seems to think the veto will not be operative under the circumstances. However, it seems to the observer at this distance, that Mr. Coolidge knew what he was about—and that Muscle Shoals bill is killed by his action.

There is a great water power site at Muscle Shoals which should be operated for whatever purpose it is best suited—but it should not be operated by the government. The American people, in a large majority, will congratulate Mr. Coolidge for his position—and hope that his vest pocket veto has effectively ended attempts to force the United States into the manufacturing of fertilizer—or anything else.

Does Woman Pay?

It's time someone spoke in plain language about this Marguerite Bumbaugh case up in Michigan.

Here was a woman, who for a decade, had enjoyed an illicit love affair with a married man. Finally, piqued at what may have been a natural scorn on the part of her co-sinner, the woman took a revolver and two brothers, went to the man's office, and killed him. The man paid for his offense against his family and society, very dearly.

The woman, through an agreement with the state, effects an agreement to plead guilty to manslaughter if the state will drop the murder charge. The plea is duly entered and the woman is sent to the Detroit house of corrections for a term of three to fifteen years. That probably means three years, at the outside.

A man and woman sin jointly and gravely for ten years. The man finds that the woman no longer appeals to him, or perhaps he answers the call of his too-long neglected conscience, and decides to go straight. The woman is peeved. She kills—and goes to jail for three years? It will take more than three years to effect correction in that sort of woman.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—Since the World war, congress has been asked on numerous occasions to pass bills remitting the customs duty on carillons of bells imported for church edifices. As a matter of course, congress has done this and it would appear that soon, if the interest displayed in bells continues, the United States will be as much a country of bells as some of the European countries.

Bells have always been used by churches and for many other purposes in this country but it is only since the war that renewed interest has been taken in them. The Americans who went overseas during war returned so much impressed by the beauty of the European bells that they have urged greater attention to them.

The origin of bells is hidden in obscurity. They existed in one form or another in the earliest times. There are Old Testament references to bells on the garments of priests while the rites of Osiris in Egypt and Cybele in Greece were accompanied by bell ringing. These, however, were small handbells. The first known use of larger bells in churches occurred about 400 A. D. when Paulinus, bishop of Nola in the Roman province of Campania, introduced them.

The carillon is relative modern although, itself, several centuries old. It consists of a large number of bells of various tones and sizes which produce definite music. Hymns can be played melodiously upon it. It is operated by a sort of clock-work which releases the clappers of the different-toned bells as desired. Many carillons are played by use of a keyboard, similar to that of a piano. Pressure on certain keys rings corresponding bells. Carillons have, as a rule, any where from twenty to seventy bells. The largest is the great carillon in the tower of Antwerp Cathedral which has ninety bells. Belgium is chiefly noted for its carillons with Holland next but they are to be found in other countries and are constantly increasing in number here.

The carillon never has been popular in England because Englishmen very early set up a system of bell-ringing of their own. As early as 1255 Henry the Third granted certain rights and privileges to the Brethren of the Guild of Westminster profession in England and to this day the various societies of bell-ringers send delegates to the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers which meets annually in London. Annual bell-ringing festivals also are held and the ringers take as much pride in their art as an opera singer or a virtuoso violinist. Bell ringing, the ringing of changes and such practices require considerable study and much practice.

Probably the largest bell ever cast is the Tsar Kolokol or Great Bell of Moscow. This was cast in 1733. It was cracked in the foundry and never has been hung or rung. It weighs 150 tons and is so large that it is used as a chapel. It stands nineteen feet high and its rim is two feet thick. The largest bell ever in actual use is another Moscow bell which weighs 128 tons.

Bells are as common in the Orient as in the western Europe or America and there, too, they are primarily connected with worship. There is an eighty-ton bell in use in Burma and the Great Bell of Peking weighs fifty-three tons. The Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris has a bell weighing seventeen tons. Large bells were cast quite early in France, the famous bell named Jacqueline of Paris, which weighs more than seven tons, having been hung about 1400. The Limboise bell of Rouen, hung in 1561, weighs more than eighteen tons. Great Tom at Oxford, England, weighs seven and a half tons; Great Paul, St. Paul's Cathedral, London, sixteen and three quarters tons; and Big Ben in the Westminster Clock Tower, thirteen and a half tons. The Kaiserlocke, which hangs in Cologne Cathedral, weighs twenty-seven and a half tons. It was cast from cannon taken from the French in the Franco-Prussian war.

Indeed, bells are closely associated with warfare. Just as bells have been employed to summon people to worship, so have they been used to call men to arms, to signal revolt, or to inspire to deeds of bravery.

Bells have had a profound influence on architecture. The first church bell was hung in Campania and the Latin word for bell became and still is campana. The characteristic tall tower seen as a part of practically all Italian and many Spanish churches is called the campanile. The Campanile of St. Marks in Venice is world-famous. In northern Europe the term belfry is used. These tall edifices would have been reared had it not been for the bells.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, June 6.—There are rumors several poppy parlors have found lodgement amid bizarre settings in the topless towers of Manhattan's skyscrapers. These are not for the party addicts of the dirty Chinatown cellars, but for the rich who have the habit.

Thus, so high above the city's incoherent thunder, they may dream their purple dreams with little fear of the raiding axe. It has been estimated there are some 20,000 pipe smokers in greater New York, and a large percentage are reputed to be those reared in culture.

Young thrill seekers dallying along the primrose path of Broadway are frequent among those who develop the "yen." Late and hectic parties often burn emotions to such a low ebb that "trying it once just for fun" reaps its toll.

It is reported two recent debutantes are now in sanitariums in the effort to be freed of the habit the underworld calls "knocking the kong around." It used to be narcotic agents could detect an opium addict by the sickly white pallor indulgence caused.

But today that is difficult. Artificial tanning will produce the bronze of an autumn leaf. The confirmed opium addict rarely drinks intoxicating liquor. A combination of the two results in violent nausea. The addict after a spree is consumed by the "shakes" and a ravaging thirst for water.

Broadway points an accusing finger at several celebrities as being among those who hit the pipe, yet it is probable this is mere gossip. Those who indulge are so clever in concealing their vice that they have been able to fool doctors for years.

The low type of the speakeasy and night club are hang-outs for eccentrics of the hop bazaars. Usually addicted themselves, they are able to throw out conversational "feelers" for prospective patrons. Prices range from $10 in the dives to $150 a night in the gilded salons.

Race track touts are said to be the easiest of all prey to opium addiction.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

There is a prayer to be found in the works of Pascal. He proposes to ask of God the proper use of sickness:

"Yes, Lord, I confess that I have esteemed health a blessing, not because it is an easy means for serving Thee with utility, for accomplishing more cares and vigils in Thy service, and for the assistance of my neighbor; but because by its aid I could abandon myself with less restraint to the abundance of the delights of life, and better relish fatal pleasures."

I do not agree with Pascal. I doubt if perfect health ever leads to loss of mortal restraint, or tends to "fatal pleasures."

Many, if not most, of the appetites for such pleasures are founded on perversions of health. We are not likely to be conscious of any part of the body until it is congested and disturbed by ill-health or appetite.

The latest advances in the treatment of brain disorder indicates that infection of some organ remote from the head is responsible for the mental aberration. In many instances the disturbance may be so slight as not to be recognized, but yet be sufficient to drive the victim out of his accustomed path of rectitude.

The appearance of health is not sufficient. It must be health founded on normal function of normal organs. Otherwise there may be such tendencies as Pascal bemoans.

Nothing is more deceptive than the superficial aspects of health. If you are unfamiliar with the real evidence, for instance, tuberculosis, you may be misled. Visit one of the many splendid tuberculosis sanitariums or camps in North America and you will see bright-eyed, tanned and red-cheeked boys and girls who will appear to the layman as perfectly healthy and normal persons. Pascal may have been deceived, as you would be, by such outward signs of health.

The proper use of sickness, as I see it, is to do the best one can do to overcome it, and, with God's help, to be restored to health. I should never seek sickness as a means of escaping temptation, because, as I have indicated, I do not believe perfect health is capable of leading to a desire for fatal pleasures.

If I were a preacher, I should proclaim first the gospel of good health, knowing that when my congregation

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy.

"Why do so many women talk about other women, slanderously, while men seldom do anything of this sort?" is a question asked.

And it is difficult to answer. Women are supposed to be more kind-hearted than men.

They should be as loyal, women to woman, but they are not, on the whole.

Among men there is a strong fraternal feeling.

The man who criticizes an absent man in a party of fellows is decidedly unpopular. Fortunately there are few such men.

Often women score other women with little apparent provocation.

Not often will men bring up unpleasant subjects at a social function.

There are few men who would deliberately try to hurt another man or woman when both are guests of a mutual friend.

But there are women who follow this practice, even at parties, where there is supposed to be only the most pleasant of contacts.

A desirable guest is one who avoids personalities in public.

Certainly, if you have the proper respect for those who entertain you, you will not indulge in angry or malicious remarks at a social function.

Wolfgang Mozart was born in the Austrian city of Salzburg, January 27, 1756, and died in Vienna, Austria, December 5, 1791. His father was a professional musician who was the boy's first teacher. Mozart was a prodigy—that is, his music was so wonderful when he was a mere boy of five or six that every one was amazed at him. He later composed music in almost every style, operas, symphonies, piano pieces, songs, etc., and seemed to be equally great in all styles. He was one of the most melodious of all composers.

Sunday School Lesson THE SON OF GOD WITH POWER

General Lesson Title—Review:

Jesus the Saviour. Eph. 2, 4:10:

4 God, being rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us,

5 Even when we were dead through our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ (by grace have ye been saved),

6 And raised us up with him, and made us to sit with him in the heavenly places, in Christ Jesus;

7 That in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus;

8 For by grace have ye been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God;

9 Not of works, that no man should glory.

10 For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them.

O God, who hast given unto us thy Son to be an Example and to help us in our weakness in following the path that leadeth unto life, grant us so to be his disciples that we may tread in his footsteps. Amen.

HOOVER'S RUNNING MATE KNOWN AS "MAN WITHOUT ENEMY"

CURTIS, SENATE LEADER, GETS THINGS DONE

Fundamental Honesty
Characteristic of V.
P. Nominee.

RECORD IS TRUE

Farmer's Friend Stands
Liberty.

"Charley" Curtis of Kansas, G. O. P. vice-presidential nominee, through whose veins runs the blood of Indian forebears, has influenced the trend of legislation probably as much as any man of his time. Other men have had the publicity and the spotlight; Curtis has been the quiet man behind the scenes in congress who got things done.

He rose to the leadership of his party through the halls of congress. His career as a national legislator covered three decades and ended with the Republican leadership of the senate.

A man of retiring disposition but of pleasing personality, a legislator of high character and impeccable integrity, a leader, who used strategy and friendship to secure results, Curtis rose from the shadows of the national political arena to become the "master mind" of congress.

Since 1924, he probably has wielded a greater influence upon the legislative history of his country than any other living man.

Two characteristics have marked his political career—patience and courage. In the exercise of his patience, he passed around the "Peace Pipe" instead of using the "Big Stick"; in the exercise of his courage, he seldom yielded a conviction to political expediency.

Honesty of Purpose.
There is one outstanding quality about him, which no man who knows him will question—his fundamental honesty of purpose. His personality and his integrity won him more friends, while he served in congress, than any other leader of his day could boast. He is known in senatorial circles as the "man without an enemy."

These traits probably are a heritage of his Indian ancestors. Curtis is a scion of royal Indian blood from the Kaw tribe that once roamed the prairies that later became Kansas and Oklahoma. He is the first candidate of either major party to have real "American blood" in his veins.

In the battle for the presidential nomination, Curtis stood upon his record as Republican leader of the senate and as a legislator of thirty-five years service in congress. His platform was brief, containing but five planks. They were promise of:

1. An administration that will foster prosperity.
2. Economy but not parsimony in government.
3. A helpful administrative interest in agriculture's problems.
4. Strict enforcement of all laws, including the prohibition law.
5. Enforcement of the constitutional guarantee of religious liberty.

This platform is characteristic of Curtis. He listed two moral issues in his five planks—prohibition, and religious liberty. It is characteristic of him to speak upon subjects, on which he holds convictions, though other men sidestep them. So it was with his public record in congress. He voted his convictions though at times he seemed to stand alone.

Summary of Record.
His record may be summarized as follows:

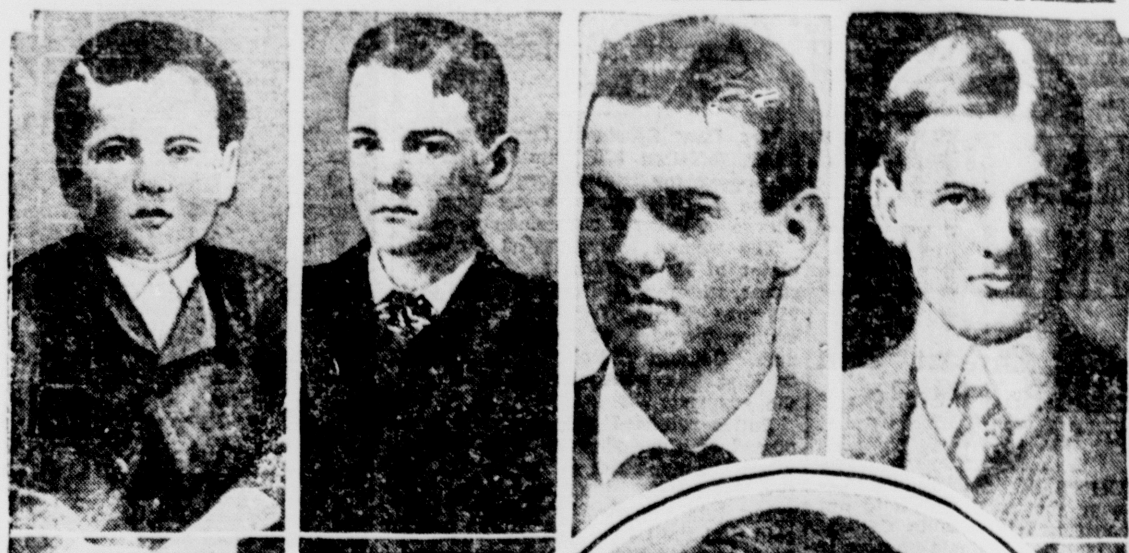

Foreign relations: Curtis supported whatever administration was in power, with few exceptions and then he disagreed only to the extent of insisting upon greater protection of American rights. In the League of Nations fight, he was a mild reservationist, willing to support Woodrow Wilson with the reservations that were acceptable to Democratic leaders in the senate. In the recent World Court fight, he originated the reservations, which prompted the senate to ratify that covenant. He stood by President Coolidge and secured a senate endorsement of the recent policy in Nicaragua.

Business and Industry: Curtis has been a conservative, but with a progressive trend that kept him "up with the times." He has been a tariff protectionist, a standpatter on that fundamental Republican doctrine. He stood for the safeguarding of invested capital and the protection of established business as a means of insuring and stabilizing prosperity.

Agriculture: Curtis championed farm relief legislation from the day he entered congress. One of his first measures was to amend the Interstate Commerce Act as a means of reducing freight rates on farm products. He proposed the bill, which saved the Federal Farm Loan Board from collapsing during the Wilson administration, by providing that the government purchase $50,000,000 of the board's bonds, which were used to finance loans to farmers. He supported the recent McNary-Haugen bill, following his convictions then in the face of White House disapproval. He sponsored his own farm relief bill in both of the last two congresses and many of the features of his bills were incorporated in the McNary-Haugen bill.

Labor Champion.
Labor: Curtis has championed much pro-labor legislation. Early in his career, he voted for the bill to exempt labor unions from the Sherman anti-trust law. He voted for the resolution, submitting the anti-child labor constitutional amendment to the people.

HOOVER AS BOY, STUDENT AND CABINET MEMBER

He voted for a bill giving union men the right of trial by jury in contempt cases, growing out of acts committed outside the court's presence. He opposed the recent Watson-Parker bill, however on the ground that the public should have been represented on the arbitration board that was created to settle railroad disputes.

Prohibition: Curtis has been a consistent dry. He voted to submit the Eighteenth Amendment to the people. He voted for the Volstead Act. To the "prohibition question" submitted to presidential candidates by Senator Borah this spring, Curtis replied that he stood for strict enforcement of the law and was opposed to its repeal. This was in accord with his attitude toward prohibition during his whole legislative career.

For Woman Suffrage.
Woman's Rights: Curtis was one of the first senators to declare for woman suffrage. As whip of the senate in 1919, he virtually directed the fight for adoption of the resolution, which submitted the Nineteenth Amendment to the people. He also sponsored a bill protecting the rights of American women, who marry foreigners. He introduced the bill establishing separate prisons for women.

It was his far-sightedness that brought peace within the Republican ranks after the LaFollette campaign of 1924. While others had forced LaFollette and three other Progressives to "walk the plank" after that election, Curtis, once he became leader, brought them back into the party.

Against Lobbyists.
Throughout his career, Curtis threw his influence toward legislation, intended to promote the prosperity of legitimate business, industry and finance. He never dealt with lobbyists. He preferred to reach his own conclusions and then to follow them.

Two of his votes depict his courage. In the world war bonus fight, the Coolidge administration fought any measure intended to take money out of the treasury. Curtis was whip of the senate then, with the venerable Henry Cabot Lodge as leader. The White House let both of them know the bonus bill was objectionable. Curtis however introduced it and Lodge voted for it. When Coolidge vetoed it, both withstood terrific pressure and voted to enact it over the veto.

In 1924, when Coolidge was nominated and was elected president in his own right, both Curtis and Lodge were punished. It was due to that bonus vote. It became known later that Coolidge opposed having Curtis on the ticket as the nominee for vice-president.

A second instance came during the oil scandals, when the senate demanded the resignation of Secretary of the Navy Denby. Although it could have been a mighty unpopular thing, Curtis voted against the resolution that demanded Denby's resignation. That vote required a supreme courage at the time, but Curtis declared the senate was invading the executive powers and having reached that decision, he voted against the resolution.

The life of Curtis proves that "truth is stranger than fiction." He was a poor man's son, born in a log cabin, living his youth on a wild frontier among Indians and yet he rose to the leadership of his party in congress and finally to the highest honor his party could bestow.

Curtis first saw the light of day near Topeka, Kas., on January 25, 1860. His father was Captain O. A. Curtis, a hardy pioneer of English extraction, whose forebears came from New England. His mother was Ellen Pappan, quarter Indian, the daughter of Princess Julie Pappan, of the Kaw tribe. It is through her that Curtis traces his ancestry back to Pawhuska, chief of the Osage tribe, and White Plume, chief of the Kaws.

His record as a prosecuting officer was sensational. Once in office, he began to carry out a campaign pledge to enforce the prohibition law. He prosecuted the "big fellows" first and then the "little ones." To the delight of the good cities and the amazement of the others, he did enforce the law. His success was so popular, he was re-elected at the end of his first term.

In 1892, he was first elected to congress and after serving fourteen years there, he was elected to the senate.

In 1912, he suffered his first defeat. That was the year of the Taft-Roosevelt split, and after winning the popular vote of the state for the Republican nomination, he lost out

HOOVER TURNS EYES TO PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

With Running Mate
Named, He Will Quit
Cabinet.

OHIOAN MAY ACT

John Richardson of Boston Suggested as Successor.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Scarcely had the reverberations of the cheering Kansas City convention died away from three or four powerful radio-speakers in the S street home of Herbert Hoover, when the Republican nominee turned his attention to preliminary campaign preparations.

With the convention adjourned, Hoover will arrange to turn the commerce department over to a successor. It may be conducted temporarily by Walter F. Brown, former Ohio political leader, whose appointment as assistant secretary sometime ago was interpreted as significant of Hoover's earnest presidential aspirations.

Several names were mentioned as Hoover's successor. The appointee named by President Coolidge virtually will be selected by Hoover and in the event of Republican pre-eminence next November no doubt will be secretary of commerce in the new cabinet. Among the possibilities was John Richardson, of Boston, Hoover's Massachusetts manager.

The office seekers already are beginning to besiege Hoover. Hundreds of telegrams and long distance calls from all parts of the country were coming in today, poorly camouflaged as congratulatory, by men who had suggestions to make as to this or that appointment.

It now appears that Hoover will remain in Washington at least a week. Arrival of his Kansas City forces is expected by Monday when a series of conferences will be started to plan the campaign. No decision has been reached as to when he will go to Palo Alto—tall trees—in California.

"I have no comment to make yet," Hoover said to correspondents.

Congratulations were extended by the men who have covered Hoover's department since March 5, 1921. The secretary beamed but merely said: "Thank you."

Essex Mirrors public choice

No matter where you hold your mirror to the cities, it will show, with slight variations, the same overwhelming Essex preference. It is a preference more outstanding than was ever held in the 6-cylinder field, in all automobile history.

World's Greatest Value altogether or part by part

To know the overpowering conviction of greatest value held by Essex owners is merely to see Essex beauty, to examine Essex quality, to sit inside and feel Essex comfort—to ride and know Essex performance.

Here is the simple and sovereign answer to the question of automobile satisfaction.

The ideal transportation achieved in the Greatest Essex Super-Six was long foreshadowed in the series of individual superiorities by which Essex towered above the field. Its vivid brilliance of performance reveals in a single ride a smoothness and quiet, a road-skimming ease and soaring exhilaration that is actually like flying.

Greater in power, more versatile in all performance, larger, roomier and more beautifully appointed, the New Essex Super-Six gloriously earns its richer reward in the greatest popularity of Essex history.

NATION'S CHIEF GOES FISHING IN WISCONSIN

Smiling Sun Keeps President at Cedar Island.

CUTS CITY TRIP

Secret Service Man Accompanies Executive on Jaunt.

By GEORGE E. POND
SUPERIOR, Wis., June 16.—A smiling sun at Cedar Island lodge versus a steady rain in Superior gave President Coolidge a valid excuse today to defer his initial visit to the temporary executive offices and devote himself to a Saturday of fishing.

He was up early, completing yesterday's cursory survey of the elaborate Brule river camp, and when word was phoned in that Superior was apparently in for a day of solid rain, the fishing decision was quickly made. The fact that the city and Cedar Island lodge are separated by the divide he counted on to keep the rain away from his end of the summer establishment.

Col. E. W. Startling, assistant chief of the White House secret service, who has been in the north woods for the past two weeks acclimating himself and making arrangements for the presidential advent, accompanied Mr. Coolidge on the fishing expedition.

Mrs. Coolidge meanwhile continues to rest. Although she is steadily improving, Colonel James F. Coughlin, the White House physician, deemed it best that she submit to a few more days of complete relaxation. Miss Mildred Beet, navy nurse, is on hand to minister to her wants.

HOOVER CALLS PARLEY MONDAY

Campaign Plans to be Discussed With Leaders.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Many of the big details of the Republican campaign will be mapped out here in a series of conferences between Herbert Hoover, and G. O. P. leaders which start Monday.

James W. Good, of Iowa, Hoover's convention manager, is expected to arrive Sunday. A delegation selected from the Republican national committee will confer with Hoover Tuesday, when the national chairman will be named.

Good is spoken of for chairman of the national committee.

Hoover was in his office early again today, attacking the accumulation of work that piled up during the days of the convention. The secretary succeeded in making up a lot of lost sleep last night and is beginning once more to "settle down" to normal after the nerve-racking drive for the nomination.

Whether or not Hoover will resign from the cabinet before he goes to Palo Alto, Calif., for a month's rest prior to opening of the campaign has not been determined. This probably will be worked out at the political parleys here next week.

Parish Honors Priest

Father Walsh remained in Cleveland for 19 years following his ordination, serving for three years as pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, under Monsignor T. P. Thorpe, and 16 years as assistant to Monsignor James O'Leary, pastor St. Colman's church.

From Cleveland he was transferred to Kent, where he was pastor for two years, and then he was appointed to St. Ann's church, Youngstown, where he was in charge for one year. In 1924, he was named pastor here by the Rt. Rev. Joseph Schrems, bishop of Cleveland, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Father T. A. Dunne.

For five months after coming to East Liverpool, Father Walsh occupied a dwelling across Fifth street from the school, while construction of the new rectory was under way.

Among his accomplishments here, reduction of St. Aloysius church debt is outstanding. He plans to have the church's entire indebtedness wiped out by the end of 1928, despite recent repairs and still further remodeling of the edifice. Interior of the building was recently frescoed and the sanctuary repaired. Three new marble altars will soon be installed and the sanctuary again remodeled.

Seated in a straight-backed chair in his rectory office, Father Walsh today smiled from behind plain rimless glasses and talked freely to the reporter about everything—except himself.

Man of Simplicity.
His interest in East Liverpool and the members of his parish was evident as he turned the conversation to them when it approached himself. He is a man of great simplicity.

"I have found that the people of East Liverpool are vitally interested in better and more cultured living," he declared. "Scores of persons working in mills and potteries are depriving themselves to send their children to schools and colleges."

He also praised the Ceramic City's love of good music and literature, while he characteristically neglected to tell that the children of the St. Aloysius school recently presented him a purse of $100 in honor of his silver anniversary in the priesthood.

TWO MEN FINED ON RUM CHARGES

Two Salem District Offenders go to Jail.

John Journey, store owner, and Megazlett G. Foreman, both of Salem, were fined $200 and costs each by Justice M. K. Zimmerman, Lisbon, today upon charges of possessing utensils for the manufacture of intoxicating liquors.

They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter yesterday when he raided an abandoned house on what is known as the Cooper and Davidson farm near Logtown, Center township. The house stands about a half mile back of the main highway.

The two men, it is claimed, occupied the house last Tuesday night and were preparing to begin liquor manufacturing operations when their plan was nipped. A 25-gallon still, 125 pounds of sugar, 25 pounds rye, three pounds of yeast cake, three mash barrels, two stoves, a wash boiler and two cots were found in the house and brought to Lisbon by Kindsvatter.

STORMS DELAY OCEAN FLIERS

Amelia Earhart and Mabel Boll Ready for Race.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 16.—Storms over the Atlantic held out small hope that Miss Amelia Earhart and Miss Mabel Boll would be able to start on their respective flights to Europe today.

Miss Earhart and her companions, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon, have not yet decided whether they will attempt to fly to the Azores or to Ireland. They will test the tri-motored monoplane Friendship today with sufficient fuel aboard to take them safely to Ireland. If the plane will rise under the heavy burden they probably will fly there.

Miss Boll and her crew, Captains Oliver Le Boutillier and Arthur Argles, paid a visit to this place yesterday and received a great welcome. They announced they will start their flight in the Columbia as soon as the weather permits.

Mrs. Dana Stephens, Gypsy fortune teller, forfeited $66 when she failed to appear for trial before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today upon a charge of being a suspicious person.

Fear Disaster

to have risen two feet on the second crest, and an additional 18-inch rise is expected on Tuesday.

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo., June 16.—Recurrent of the Mississippi river tributaries was feared today as two levees, one on the St. Francis river in Missouri, and a second on the White river in Arkansas gave way.

Water seeping through a stretch of the levee along the St. Francis river north of Kennett, Mo., caused a break in the levee today that sent water pouring through a 150-foot stretch and is believed will inundate 25,000 acres of farm land and make 1000 families homeless.

The Stevens levee near Newport, Ark., gave way spreading the raging waters from the White river over approximately 600,000 acres of land in the White river valley. Approximately 700 families were reported homeless, and four villages in the path of the constantly spreading waters were deserted.

Expect Third Break.
As in the case of the St. Francis river break, there were 300 men working on the levee when it went out. These men hastily threw aside their tools, and some were reported to have narrowly escaped with their lives.

Five companies of Missouri national guardsmen are working desperately with 3,000 farmers, business and professional men south of Kennett in a frantic effort to prevent a break near Campbell and south of Kennett. It is believed the number of workers will be doubled by tonight.

The Missouri river break is being watched more carefully than in the Arkansas river valley as there the rivers are not expected to reach another high crest. This was the second rise of the St. Francis river, and a third is expected to reach this section about Tuesday.

Mayor E. Tankey of Kennett stated 150 families were in immediate need of attention in this city, and Red Cross headquarters have been established there. A refugee camp soon will be in operation.

NOBIL RESCUE SHIP ICEBOUND

Second Relief Steamer Also Hemmed in by Floes.

LONDON, June 16.—The steamer Braganza, which is attempting to bring aid to General Umberto Nobile and his stranded crew, radioed that it was ice-bound near Brandy Bay, Spitzbergen, a central news dispatch from King's Bay stated today.

The Braganza's operator stated that the relief steamer Hobby was also hemmed in by the ice-floes between Walen Bay and Lommen Bay. Dog teams which have been dispatched from both vessels are expected to meet at Cape Platen tonight.

A wireless message from Nobile received at King's Bay stated that his party was now drifting slowly westward, the dispatch added. It is now believed that Nobile is nearing Charles the Twelfth land.

The arrival of Major Mammela, the Italian aviator, flying the Savoia 55, is being eagerly awaited at King's Bay.

The powerful Russian ice-breaker Malign is now steaming directly towards Foyn Island. When it arrives there, the seaplane aboard the ship will attempt to locate the stranded men.

There is still no confirmation of the report that the Swedish professor Malmgren and the Italian navy commanders Zappi and Maritano, who left the others of the Italia's crew to trek across the ice for aid, have been saved.

The Russian ice-breaker Kraasin is now also steaming northward to the aid of the Italia's crew.

KING'S ZAY, Spitzbergen, June 16.—Three powerful seaplanes are en route for Spitzbergen today to make a supreme effort to save Gen. Umberto Nobile and his stranded companions. They are the French plane, piloted by Commander Guilbaud; the Italian seaplane, piloted by Major Penso, and the Swedish plane Upland.

More than 6,000,000 bunches of bananas, valued at $3,011,000, were exported from Guatemala last year.

FLORENCE VIDOR HIT HERE MONDAY

Syncoated melodies from an American jazz band...hundreds of persons dancing, drinking and flirting in a cafe...beggars looking into the windows, envying all this gayety...the doors open...a beautiful woman comes out to the street, followed by several doddering old men...cries of flower vendors...a crowd of gaping people watching a gendarme remove a disturber from a cafe.

This is the Paris revealed on the screen in Florence Vidor's latest Paramount starring vehicle, "The Magnificent Flirt," which comes to the Ceramic theatre Monday.

It is a French farce bristling with smart comedy and romantic complications, with Miss Vidor playing the title role. She wins her way into the heart of a wealthy count but, when he sees her kissing another man, he accuses her of being too careless with her love.

On those grounds, he refuses to allow his nephew—the man Miss Vidor kisses—to marry her daughter. How Miss Vidor is vindicated, much to the humiliation of the count, forms an interesting and entertaining story.

The French atmosphere has been caught as only Parisians can catch it. H. d'Abbadie d'Arast, the director, comes of French parents and has spent much time in Paris, while Jean de Limur, who wrote the screen play, knows the French capital like a book.

Beautiful, flirtatious women, handsome men, jazz and gayety mark "The Magnificent Flirt."

Salineville Miner Found Dead at Work

Body of Patrick O'Brien, Loader, Discovered Lifeless in Bank "Room"; Coroner to Make Inquest.

Believed to have been stricken with a heart affliction, Patrick O'Brien, 70 years old, coal miner, was found dead yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in his "room" in the Bougher mine, two miles east of Salineville on the Wells-ville road.

Coroner J. M. VanFossan was expected to reach Salineville at noon to conduct an inquest.

O'Brien had been a mine worker for many years. About three months ago, it is said, he was overcome while at work in the Bougher mine, and for six weeks was confined to his home. About three weeks ago he returned to work but after five days' loafing he was compelled to lay off again.

Thursday he went out to work again. Yesterday afternoon his body, life extinct, was found in a "room" of the bank by David Buxton, motorman. It was taken to the Hutton funeral home in Salineville.

One brother, Thomas O'Brien of Wellsville, is the only immediate survivor. Deceased's wife died two years ago. Since then he has been making his home with John Wirebaugh.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning in the St. Patrick's Catholic church, Salineville, in charge of Rev. E. B. Conry, pastor. Burial will be made in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Wellsville Loses Second Straight; Katies Shade Madisons

Laughlin First Inning Drive Defeats Leaders

Four Runners Cross in Opening Frame of Newell Tilt; K. T. K. Billiards Clout Ball Hard in East End Game.

WELLSVILLE'S slender lead in the industrial league race was further menaced last night when Manager Ray Nicholson's tossers went down to the second straight defeat in as many days, at the hands of the Homer Laughlin squad on the Newell diamond. The score was 7 to 3.

The contest was practically decided in the first inning when Joe Dickie's aggregation put four tallies across the plate on three hits, including a home run by Chappie Finley and some loose work on the part of the supporting cast of Pitcher Easton. They scored two more in the third on a walk and two hits and put together their final marker in the fourth on an error by Adamson and a bingle by Crawford.

Wellsville tallied in the first on a single by Adamson. He went to second and continued home when Rager laid down a sacrifice hit and was thrown out at first by the pitcher. Merchant, in an effort to catch him going to third on the play, tossed to Edgers, C. Wagner tripled in the third and scored on a single by G. Wagner. Hits by Adamson and Rager coupled with an out give the visitors their last score.

Easton and Digman both hurled good ball but were given poor support at times. The former suffered most in this respect. Easton set down eight of the home boys by the air route. Digman fanned three of the visitors.

The fielding feature of the game goes to the credit of Curly Evans, former Chester hurler, who played right field for Laughlin. He pulled down several hard chances all labeled for extra base hits. Crawford also gathered in several hard chances while the game was brought to a close by a nice double play engineered by Finley with Simcox on the end of the two play killing.

Adamson led the way in the hitting, getting four swats in as many times at bat. His drives were hard and solid. Evans, Crawford and Digman were the best performers with the willow for Laughlin.

Shade Given Decision in Grudge Fight
Ringside Experts Disagree With Verdict.

NEW YORK, June 16.—One of those rare ring occurrences, a real grudge fight, wound up with a foggy decision last night at the Coney Island stadium, when Dave Shade was declared a winner over George Courtney at the end of ten rounds of mean miling.

This pair, ranked among the leading middleweights, had never met before this and, with the possibility of a title bout with Mickey Walker looming up for the winner, plus personal dislike of each other, they came down to the wire fighting savagely.

Shade carried the final round by spearing the widely rushing Oklahoma man with a variety of cleanly delivered punches. Dave's finish evidently won him the nomination as Courtney had previously won at least five rounds. However, George had been guilty of much holding and rough, unethical mauling and wrestling.

A majority of the press box observers thought Shade deserved no better than a draw and many contended that the round by round score should have returned Courtney the winner. Courtney was so incensed at the verdict that he refused to shake hands with Shade and raised his gloved hands in gestures of disgust.

The men indulged in many wordy exchanges as they hammered away at each other. Courtney carried the fight to the Californian in the early rounds and although he missed many leads at the bobbing figure in front of him scored often with deft hooks and uppercuts.

Genewich Is Traded To Giants

McGraw Parts With Catcher, Three Twirlers.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Cardinals, who have dislodged the Reds from the top of the National league ladder, face stronger opposition today from the third place Giants.

In a last-minute trade a few hours before the 25-player limit went into effect last night, John McGraw obtained the veteran pitcher he needed to round out his mound staff. He swapped Catcher Al Spohrer and three twirlers—Virgil Barnes and two rookies, Ben Cantwell and Bill Clarkson—to the Boston Braves in exchange for Genewich.

The Cardinals eased into first place when Bottomley's homer with two on base in the fourteenth staked them to a 5 to 2 win over Brooklyn.

The tail-end Phillies took an 8 to 7 slugfest from the Reds. Don Hurst walloped his fourth homer in five games.

Aldridge, former Pirate, pitched the Giants to a 9 to 1 victory over the Reds.

The Benetters dropped their seventh straight game when the Cubs nosed them out, 5 to 4. Hack Wilson swatted his twelfth homer.

The Tigers lost to Washington in the tenth, 5 to 4.

With Grove on the mound, the Athletics swamped Cleveland, 12 to 5.

Brannon and Kress personally conducted the sprightly Browns to a 5 to 4 win over the Yanks. Each got a home run and Alvin Crowder managed to turn back the champions even though the Browns were outbatted by ten hits to five. Babe Ruth's 24th homer of the season was wasted.

MacFayden, Red Sox twirler, held the White Sox hitless for seven innings and trimmed them 3 to 1.

The endurance contest terminated in the fifth when K. T. K. counted on an error, a sacrifice and a hit. They practically sewed it up in the sixth with two more counters, although the Madisons came through with a run in the seventh.

BABE NINE UP ON BUSTER GEHRIG

NEW YORK, June 16.—George Herman Ruth's 24th homer of the season, made yesterday off Crowder of the St. Louis Browns, puts him seven games ahead of his last year's record. He is nine up on Buster Gehrig, his closest contender.

Jim Bottomley contributed his thirteenth circuit clout of the campaign, going into a tie with Rogers Hornsby for home run hitting laurels in the National league.

The Two Fastest Human Beings

Spectators at the Olympic tryouts in the Eastern division will get the thrill of the lives when Charley Paddock (left) and Charley Borah fight it out for supremacy in the century event at Yankee Stadium. Veteran track men will not be surprised if the present record of 93.5 seconds is smashed by one Charley or the other.

City Circuit To Hold Meet Monday Night

Postponed Games, Protests Will be Considered.

C. W. Davis, president of the City Industrial Baseball League, today announced a meeting of the circuit managers, to be held on Monday night at 8:15 o'clock in the chamber of commerce rooms, Little building.

Among the principal subjects for discussion will be plans for playing off postponed and tie contests and the protests of the Wellsville club on the Laughlin victory last night.

Manager Roy Nicholson charges that "Curly" Evans, Laughlin outgainer, was ineligible to play with the West Virginians. It was Evans' first appearance in the circuit this season.

SANDUSKY RACE CARD SUCCESS

SANDUSKY, O., June 16.—Horsemen were well pleased today with the Ohio short ship harness race program which started here Monday and ended yesterday afternoon with three races on the card.

Bessie Orr, top heavy favorite in the 2:22 pace Friday, won while Bugle Call, top heavy favorite in the trot for non winners of two races in 1928, failed to place.

AT NEW YORK—Dave Shade, California middleweight, won decision over George Courtney, of Oklahoma (10).

U. S. Olympic Prospects Face "Showdown" Trials

Amsterdam Candidates to Compete for Team Places in Three Meets Today, Preliminary to Finals in July.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The question of just how much of a spurge your favorite uncle, with the striped pants, high hat, chin whiskers and the name of Samuel, may be prepared to make in the Olympic games at Amsterdam this summer will be presented for a show down in three major sectors of the country this afternoon. New York will muster the flower of eastern competition at the Yankee stadium; Denver will call forth the best of the Rocky Mountain district, and Los Angeles, ever the happy hunting ground for talent on the spiked hoof, will send to the post one of the finest groups of sprinters, jumpers hurdlers and what-would-you-ever-assembled on one field.

The occasions in question will be sectional Olympic trials, preliminary to the final and ultimate qualification for team places in Boston early in July. Winners and second men in the eastern intercollegiate and the national collegiate A. A. games already have staked their claims to a fling at the Boston finale.

So have the qualifiers in the Pacific trials at San Francisco, the Pacific northwest test at Portland, Ore., the southern affair at Dallas and the southeastern sectionals at Atlanta.

But with the east, the Rockies and the southern Pacific sections still to show their cards and the Allegheny mountains, the mid-western and the central districts reserving their trials for later in the month, it may be conceded that the backbone of the embryonic team has yet to prove its strength or weakness.

Outside of Claude Bracey, sensational Texan, and a casual few others, the sprinters who have qualified for the Boston games to date do not bear the hallowed names that have served to make America great. This deficiency will be altered this afternoon, both at Los Angeles and in the Yankee stadium.

Is Charley Paddock still the "fastest human?" He very nearly will have to be to outfoot the field they are dropping him in with on the coast this afternoon. The day Charles was said to have 9 1/2 seconds for the hundred, there was some question of whether he hadn't actually been headed at the tape by another man.

The latter was and still is Charley Borah and he will be in there against Paddock again this afternoon. So will be Lombardi, the 9 3/5 second school boy, and Wyckoff, another precocious juvenile. It may be specifically determined this afternoon whether or not Paddock is to exercise his usual domination of the Olympic sprints this year.

The Yankee stadium field of sprinters will be equally meritorious in quality and considerably greater in quantity.

The good ones will include Jack Scholz, olympic champion; Frank Hussey and Chet Bowman, members of the 1924 team; Hank Russell, back to form again; Roland Locke, the ex-cornhusker whose injuries have prevented him from resuming his record breaking career of several years ago, and a coterie of collegians.

These games also will show Lloyd Hahn under colors for the first time since he entered a new world's half mile record in the books last March. Hahn has declared for the 800-metre distance and his performance will be watched jealously by the American coaches, who are figuring on the Nebraska to break up the Numi monopoly on the olympic middle distance races. These same coaches will be watching Weems Baskin in the high hurdles and Johnny Gibson over the 400-metre obstacle, as this is another pair that is regarded as potential winners in its specialties at Amsterdam. The same goes for Joe Tierney, the quarter miler who outfooted Emerson Spencer here several weeks back.

It is understood that the Denver games will send only about six men to the Boston trials but one of them, Ed Haynes, seems to be as much of a : and out as most of those mentioned above. Haynes has beaten even time for the hundred and has shown a quarter in 48.35 seconds. He probably will make his play for this event.

The coast affair will have further interest because of the meeting of John Kuck, recent world record maker, and Clarence Houser, olympic champion, in the shot put. This pair will come pretty close to finishing one-two at Amsterdam if Houser is right. As for Kuck, he never has been wrong. They say he has done the unbelievable distance of 56 feet in practice.

Lee Barnes, world's record holder in the pole vault, also will be on parade in these games, and, if you think the boys won't be watching Dye, Grumbles and Maxwell in the hurdles, then I would advise that you take one more guess, at least. For all you know, it might be the right one.

The Constant Flame

Narrative of Love and Struggle
Against Temptations

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

She leaned over whispering while Skeets fooled with the engine. "Is it an elopement, Stel? You're going to be married? Oh, I hope you'll be happy!"

The other girl shot a nervous glance at Skeets and Emily pressed her hand.

She looked backward at the corner. Stella was watching him and there were tears in the black eyes.

About this time a small, white-clad figure was sliding through the hedge toward the Bents.

Dottie hadn't talked. No one had been able to make her tell about the night in the St. John mountains.

For this she was kept at home. She could stroll about the yard but she had always to be within sight of the house. She had grown moody and resentful, her only interest was Lipping Kitten get out of her own escapades.

There was a tiny building at the back of the lot which had been a playhouse when the children were small; here the two youngsters kept a mirror and powder and rouge and earrings.

They were her now and Kitten made herself up. She felt very much the lady of the world with ear-drops dangling against her throat and her lips painted scarlet. Of course she couldn't do this at home for its always brought about trouble with Emily.

Presently she took the path up the hill which was not visible from her own home and hurried over to Main street. There she loitered, turning her head as cars passed. One stopped and she got in.

A dark face bending toward her, then, a long, slender hand touching hers for an instant.

"So you came? Lamb-child!"

Laughter rippled through her; she cuddled down on the cushions.

CHAPTER 33.

Frances Hadden had gone to Atlantic City and now a matter of great importance had come up and there was only Emily to handle it.

Frances had been looking forward for some time to redecorating the north wing of the Rossiter. Mrs. Rossiter had telephoned and she had been holding herself in readiness for a consultation. But the latter lagged through late summer and eventually Frances declared herself worn out and said she was going away for a rest.

"You can take care of things, my dear. There's a lot of intelligence in that fair head of yours."

But Emily was anxious. "What if Mrs. Rossiter should make up her mind, Frances? All in a rush and so critical she is—"

Frances laughed at that. "A good chance to try out your mettle. Of course you could telegraph me. Mrs. Rossiter won't, though."

But she did. It was the morning after Frances' departure that Mrs. Briggs telephoned.

"That you, Emmy? Madam says tell Mrs. Hadden will she come right up?"

"Won't tomorrow do? You see—"

Mrs. Briggs, whispered hoarsely. "They's others been hanging around here, Emmy. You'd better not be putting it off now she's in the mind. I'm telling you." And she dialed the receiver as one who had done her duty.

Emily held the telephone in a frozen, stupid way till it began to make squawking noises; then she, too, hung up. She decided she must see Mrs. Rossiter and explain.

No time now for the message to Atlantic City; she'd send that afterward. She jammed a little felt hat down over her hair, darting a glance into the mirror, and started almost running up the River Road.

Hurrying through the gates at Highcliffe she had a sudden, piercing memory of the other time she had come here and of her illusion that Kent would be waiting at the steps. Smiling down at her with his blue eyes so merry, so quizzical.

He was not there, though, nor would he be ever, waiting for her. Life was like that; she had seen it when she was only a little girl, even before Anne Morrow's party. Things shining so, all soft and glowing, a way off and going dull when you come up to them. That was life.

Now she remembered Kent was home; even today he might be here—meet her as she came through the door.

That brought her to a stop; she cowered back, half-minded to flee.

But it was only an impulse, over in a flash. She went on with her chin a little higher, more sedately, and was shown to a library in the north wing.

Mrs. Rossiter awaited her here. A young-looking woman, not at all like Kent but rather like Avis she was, beautiful in a faded way. She wore a smart sport suit and Emily got the impression that she intended going out at once and could be interrupted only a moment. Later on she came to know that restlessness for a characteristic of Kent's mother.

"I came to tell you—" Emily began.

Mrs. Rossiter paid no attention. "What I've been planning," she said, hurriedly, "was something in the way of green velvet hangings, leaf green perhaps—"

"But it's a north room!" Emily protested. "Cedars outside the windows—oh, not green, Mrs. Rossiter. Monotonous—why, you'd never like it!"

The finely arched brows went up. "You have a suggestion?"

"Oh, yellow and orange—wonderful against those dark branches. And why would you have velvet? Glazed chintz would bring in the light."

They planned. Emily forgot she was in Kent's home, talking to Kent's mother, and that she had come only to excuse Frances' absence.

Mrs. Rossiter first rejected them and then took them back, one by one.

"I might like this; that might be an improvement," she kept saying.

Finally it was all arranged and Emily was going down the River Road, rather in a panic.

"I shouldn't have done that—should have waited for Frances. Not my place, not my right. Indeed—oh, indeed—"

She went to the telegraph office and sent her message, an apologetic little entreaty that made the clerk smile.

And she met Frances at the train next morning, half-crying.

"Maybe you'll never forgive me. I didn't realize—well, you see she wanted green velvet right against the cedars. And after that I forgot I wasn't you. And if you're offended I'll just atone."

"Nonsense, my dear. Never go back on anything you've done that's your best. I dare say your taste is better than mine. We'll see now."

They talked it over. Frances preferred red to orange but said that was a matter of taste.

"What you've got to do now," she went on, "is to hold Mrs. Rossiter to her choice. Women of her sort are changeable, you know."

"You'll be taking it all away, dear Frances. You'll be doing it now."

"Not at all. You've got to confess failure, or the fear of it, by giving up your right to another no matter whom that no may be. It's always the chance your own thought may be right. Anyway it's your duty to see it through."

So it was that Emily used the redecorating of the north wing at Highcliffe. Each day she walked by the tall gates and up the drive, always with a flutter at her heart, the hope and the fear that this time she would meet Kent.

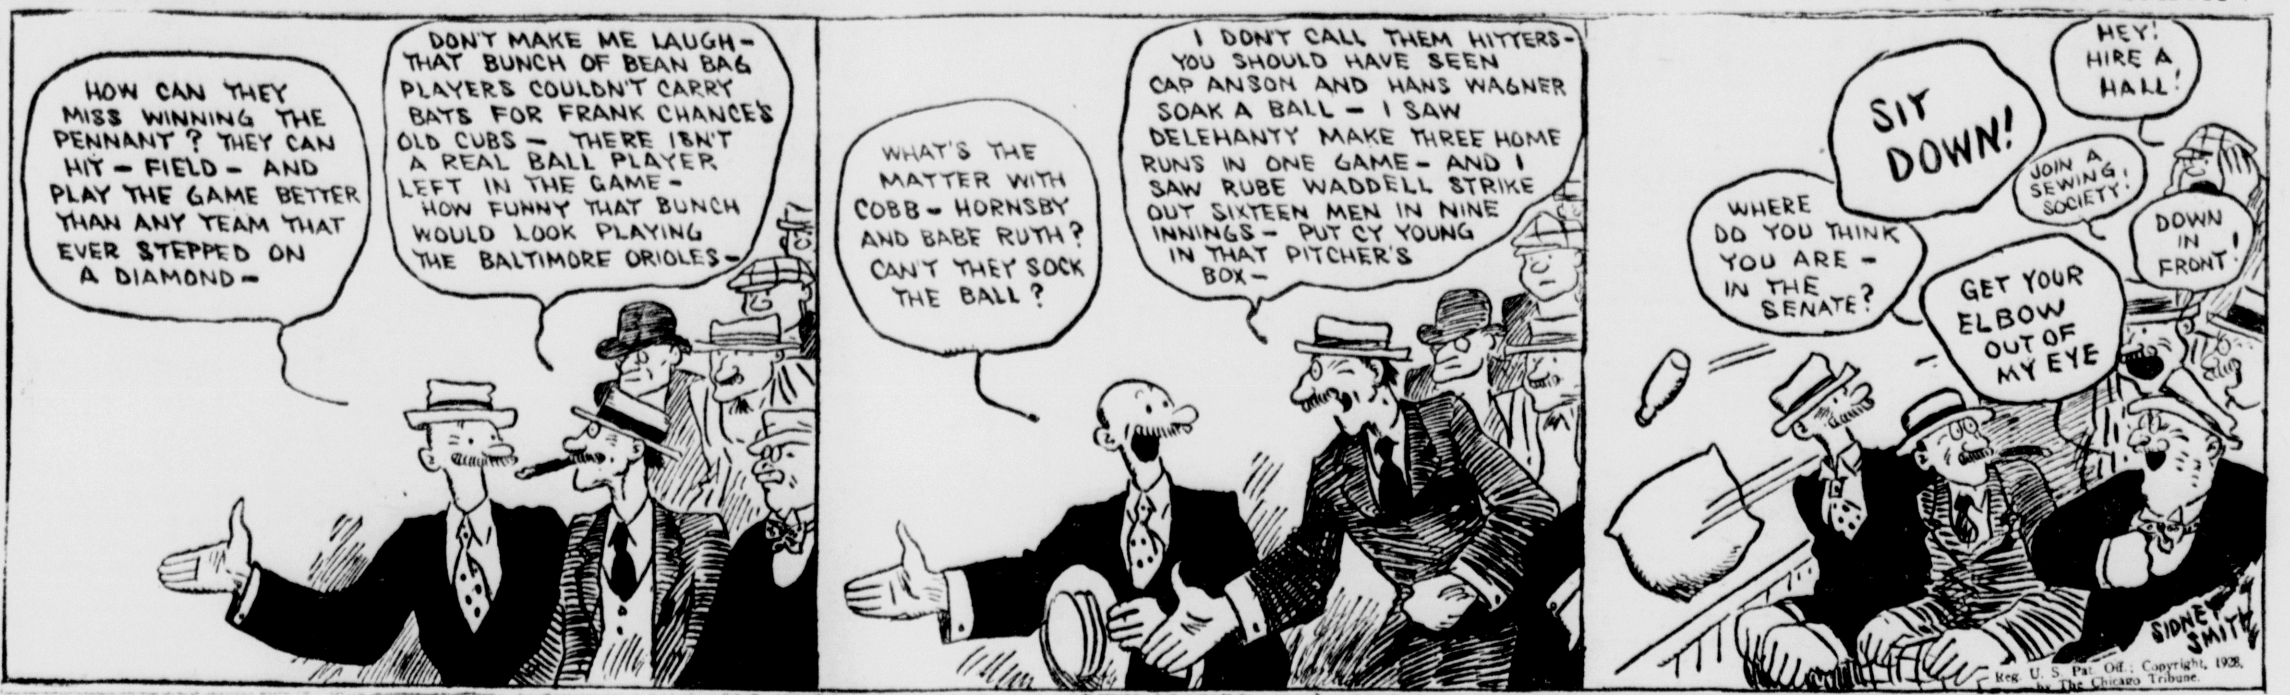

But she never met him.

She brought her workmen and told them what to do; she conferred with Mrs. Rossiter over glazed chintz and wall tintings; a dozen times she shyly argued that lady away from the notion of making all that had been done and starting over on something else.

There were mornings when she took from the shop door the box of flowers Missions sent her and forgo to open it; evenings when she telephoned him she could not keep her eyes from him. He grew rather impatient with it all but she didn't know that. Her whole mind was on her work.
